

6.4.10

I have had the privilege of observing Ms. Goldner as a visiting guest artist at the Art Department of NJCU in April, 2010. Ms. Goldner engaged a body of sculpture students with a creativity workshop designed to provide an opportunity for creative growth.

Ms. Goldner brings a level of experience and poise that dovetails keenly with a platform for creative opportunity. In Ms. Goldner's workshop, she encourages experimentation and personal growth through writing exercises, group discussion as well as one on one interaction.

In my observations, the students gained immense confidence in both their written and verbal aptitudes. Ms. Goldner stimulated critical thinking that encouraged students of all levels to consider their own identity, interests, goals, and intentions. Most significantly, the students responded to Ms. Goldner with excitement, interest, and thoughtful challenging work.

Ms. Goldner's creativity workshop would be an asset in almost any learning or creative environment. It is a rare opportunity to find an individual so adept at facilitating creativity and professional development and I fully recommend Ms. Goldner.

Brian Gustafson, Assistant Professor
New Jersey City University

